

Richard Finn and Adia Nunnally

OCTOBER 22, 2011

Adia and Richard visited many beautiful wedding venues, in search of the perfect one. None of the venues were the complete package the couple was looking for until they found the Bedford Village Inn in Bedford, NH. It had the rustic feel the couple wanted, beautiful gardens and the property was in pristine condition.

For the ceremony, Adia and Richard's Justice of the Peace proposed a memorable and unique tradition called the "wine box" ceremony. Before the wedding, the couple picked a special bottle of wine that would age nicely. The night before the big day, Adia and Richard wrote each other letters and sealed them. During the ceremony the bottle of wine and letters were placed in a custom made box. The couple will open the box and letters on their tenth wedding anniversary to remind them of how they felt on that very special day.

The couple preferred a more intimate rather than big wedding celebration. They kept their wedding parties small and included their siblings in the celebration. Richard's brother was his best man, and Adia's sister was her Maid of Honor. Adia's older brother spoke during the ceremony, as well.

For the reception, the couple had friends and family sit with people they had not met before. Guests had a wonderful time getting to know each other as they enjoyed their meals.

Adia and Richard had also taken dance lessons at Portsmouth Ballroom Dance Studio, which was an engagement gift from Rich's parents. For their first dance, the couple did the hustle to "Rock with You", by Michael Jackson.
